The Clueberry Book is a gloriously fun and inspiring book for kids! Ever wondered where a negative thought takes you? Ever wondered where a positive thought takes you? This book SHOWS you where! You'll encounter monsters, learn how to face your fears and learn how to stay on track with positive thinking. In short, you get to know your own mind in a whole new way! The book kicks off with 27 illustrated lessons in how to apply positive thinking! Use the map on pages 5 and 6 to follow your "train of thought" as you go through the lessons and find all the cool places mentioned in the book! The first thing to learn in Lesson 1? YOU ARE THE TRAIN in your own life. And how do you stay on track in life? The rest of the lessons take readers through a vibrantly illustrated look at how to tap into the most powerful form of fuel we have: mind power! The second part of the book is an interactive tour of the Clueberry World with a funky character named Edgar Dupin, the train conductor at the Think Tank. Grab a magnifying glass to see that Edgar's got two different sized eyes and some crazy hair! His job in the world is to help readers explore the magical world of clueberries! At the end of each "stop" during the tour, there is a tools icon for parents and educators to help kids make connections to their own life. The last section of the book is a Fear Manifesto, a chapter that shows kids how 14 different kinds of fear can derail their dreams. Readers learn how to identify derailing thoughts and how to recalibrate to positive thoughts in tough situations in order to keep life going full steam ahead! It's inspiring. It's fun. It's silly. It's practical, useful and the kind of book you'll return to over and over.
