Unstoppable Yanni Raz

Unstoppable is a word defined as difficult or impossible to preclude or stop. As a human quality, it is something that we associate with people such as sports superstars, those who do whatever it takes to inspire others and lead teams to the greatest of victories. Some times, a movement or social endeavor becomes unstoppable, starting in unlikely places then taking on a life of its own, such as the Solidarnosc (Solidarity) Polish trade union founded on September 17, 1980 at the Gdansk Shipyard under the leadership of Lech Walesa. The first trade union behind the Iron Curtain, Solidarity eventually included one-third of the total working-age population of Poland and was instrumental in the country's liberation from decades of communist rule. Personal examples of being unstoppable are often more inspiring, like Charles Lindbergh crossing the Atlantic in a solo flight when no one had previously done it, or track star Roger Bannister breaking the four-minute mile barrier, or Kobe Bryant scoring an amazing 60 points and leading his team to an improbable last-minute victory in his last game as an NBA player. Not everyone can be a world adventurer or great athlete, but anyone can be unstoppable in their chosen endeavors in life if they are willing to display an unswaying determination to succeed, and a constant willingness to learn and grow until they possess the tools necessary to triumph. YANNI RAZ viii This book is about such a personal struggle, one in which the author awoke from a coma after a terrible accident and faced a life of permanent paralysis.
