Guide to Supporting a Griever: Without sticking your foot in your mouth Litsa Williams, Eleanor Haley
The authors of the 'What's Your Grief' blog bring you this practical and straight forward guide to supporting a grieving acquaintance, friend, or loved one after a death.

Using their typically candid style, Litsa Williams and Eleanor Haley help the reader the reframe their role from 'grief comforter' to 'grief supporter'; a shift they say must be made in order to meet the needs of the individual griever.

Throughout the book they will provide you with the guidance you need to anticipate a grievers needs and plan the most thoughtful support approach, covering topics such as:

- What to Expect: The Grief Experience
- Writing the Sympathy Card
- Specific Words and Phrases for a Flower Card, Sympathy Card, or Letter
- What to Send Instead of Flowers
- What to Say to Someone after a Death
- What Not to Say to Someone after a Death
- How to Be a Good Listener
- When Is Grief No Longer Normal?
- Helping a Griever Get Help
- Being There Long-term

Although the authors believe this book will prove invaluable in your quest to support a griever, they still invite you to e-mail them with any follow up questions and promise to respond in a swift manner.
